Everyone knows Tom Swift, famous teen inventor. By now you should know his mother, Anne Swift, is one of the top molecular biological detectives in the United States. Well, did you know she secretly works special assignments for the FBI? How about that she has never told anyone in her family about her secret work? This is the third trilogy of her stories as she balances being a wife and a mother with being a crackerjack biological detective, helping to solve cases that no other lab or team can handle—or would be allowed to tackle. This volume contains the stories: • Anne Swift and the Alien Anticoagulant Anomaly • Anne Swift and the Pernicious Parasitic Pandemic • Anne Swift: Interview With a MoBiDet They cover everything from the possibility that aliens are draining people and farm animals of their blood, people who have their intestinal tracts filling up with parasites and nobody knows why, and the in depth interview Anne did once she retired from her secret job. This might be the final trio of Anne Swift stories, but do not despair. A full-length novel is in the works for late 2015!
